Liberal education at Stetson means liberating yourself from prejudice. It means studying with and living with people who have had life experiences different from your own.

We start by affirming the human dignity, worth, and equality of each member of our community. We protect and encourage each other. Through sharing our life stories and the stories of our ancestors, we learn how people have been unfairly treated or privileged because of race, ethnicity, religion, economic class, or sexual orientation.

We challenge you to bring your own individuality to the richness of human experience at Stetson. At Stetson, you can prepare yourself for the diverse world outside our gates.

"There is an old African proverb: 'When you pray, move your feet, our hands, our hearts, our resources to build up, to tear down, to reconcile and not to divide, to love and not to kill. In the final analysis, we are one family, one community.'
