

Hello!

I am writing to you in response to the e-mail message below that was sent to me by a WPU employee. I don't know this person. The e-mail was sent in response to an ANNOUNCEMENT e-mail about a Women's Studies sponsored event, a film and discussion entitled: "Ruthie and Connie: Every Room in the House." In the ANNOUNCEMENT I indicated that the film is about a lesbian relationship.

Mr.. Daniel's message to me sounds threatening and in violation of our University non-discrimination policy. I don't want to feel threatened at my place of work when I send out announcements about events that address lesbian issues. I think that Mr.. Daniel needs to be informed that he has violated the University policy. I am not sure about what else should be done to censure him and make me feel that I am working in a safe environment. Please advise me.

Thank you. Arlene

Do not send me any mail about "Connie and Sally" and "Adam and Steve". These are perversions. The absence of God in higher education brings on confusion. That is why in these classes the Creator of the heavens and the earth is never mentioned.
