OTHER UNIVERSITY POLICIES

The following are some specific policies that are not subject to the most severe sanctions, but will nevertheless draw disciplinary action from the University. A student who commits one or more of the following offenses is subject to discipline under the standard procedures of the student judicial system. To the extent that any of the following acts directly contribute to the emotional or physical detriment of members of the University community, or constitute serious criminal conduct under federal or state law, the Vice President for Student Affairs has the discretion to impose the most severe sanctions.

Individual or Group Protest Action Policy

Students are free to support causes by orderly means that do not disrupt the regular and essential operation of the University.

1. All students who wish to organize a group protest, whether or not they are members of a recognized student organization, must follow the same procedures as student organizations to request access to facilities or a location on University premises. The University reserves the right to set limits on the appropriate time, place and manner of the protest.
2. Students may be subject to disciplinary action if they:
 - initiate or participate in a demonstration or any form of protest on campus without following the above procedures; or participate in any activity during an authorized demonstration that obstructs the academic process, interferes with the rights of others on campus, or results in physical violence or property damage.

Search and Seizure Policy

Delaware State University, as a state-related institution of higher education, recognizes that there must be a balance between its responsibility to maintain and protect an orderly educational environment and the privacy rights of members of the University community. The purpose of this policy is to address the rules for searches and seizures that are needed to protect the safety and operation of the University and enforcement of University policies and procedures. Searches conducted primarily for law enforcement purposes will be subject to different procedures.
