Domestic Violence definition in Clery Act: Violence, including but not limited to sexual or physical abuse or the threat of such abuse, committed by a current or former spouse or intimate partner or any other person from whom the Alleged Complainant is protected under federal or Louisiana law. The length of the relationship.

The type of relationship.

The frequency of interaction between the persons involved in the relationship.

The following definitions shall also be used in institutional policy and in the implementation thereof by all Louisiana public postsecondary education institutions as per the Board of Regents:

Sexual Harassment: Unwelcome conduct of a sexual nature when i) submission to such conduct is made either explicitly or implicitly a term or condition of a person’s employment or education; ii) submission to or rejection of such conduct by a person is used as the basis for a decision affecting that person’s employment or education; or iii) such conduct has the purpose or effect of unreasonably interfering with a person’s employment or education, or creating an intimidating, hostile, or offensive employment or educational environment, and has no legitimate relationship to the subject matter of a course or academic research. Sexual Harassment also includes non-sexual harassment or discrimination of a person because of the person’s sex and/or gender, including harassment based on the person’s nonconformity with gender stereotypes. For purposes of this Policy, the various forms of prohibited Sexual Harassment are referred to as “sexual misconduct.”

Retaliation: Acts or attempted acts for the purpose of interfering with any report, investigation, or proceeding under this Policy, or as retribution or revenge against anyone who has reported Sexual Misconduct or Relationship Violence or who has participated (or is expected to participate) in any manner in an investigation, or proceeding under this Policy. For purposes of this Policy, an attempt requires a substantial step towards committing a violation.

Consent to engage in sexual activity must exist from beginning to end of each sexual activity. Consent is demonstrated through mutually understandable words and/or actions that clearly indicate a willingness to engage in a specific sexual activity. Silence alone, without actions evidencing permission, does not demonstrate Consent. Consent must be knowing and voluntary. To give Consent, a person must be of legal age. Assent does not constitute Consent if obtained through Coercion or from an individual whom the Alleged Offender knows or reasonably should know is incapacitated. The responsibility of obtaining Consent rests with the person initiating sexual activity. Use of alcohol or drugs does not diminish one's responsibility to obtain Consent. Consent to engage in sexual activity may be withdrawn by any person at any time. Once withdrawal of Consent has been expressed, the sexual activity must cease. Consent is automatically withdrawn by a person who is no longer capable of giving Consent. A current or previous consensual dating or sexual relationship between the persons involved does not itself imply Consent or preclude a finding of responsibility.

Incapacitation An individual is considered to be incapacitated if, by reason of mental or physical condition, the individual is manifestly unable to make a knowing and deliberate choice to engage in sexual activity. Being drunk or intoxicated can lead to Incapacitation; however, someone who is drunk or intoxicated is not necessarily incapacitated, as Incapacitation is a state beyond drunkenness or intoxication. Individuals who are asleep, unresponsive or unconscious are incapacitated. Other indicators that an individual may be Incapacitated include, but are not limited to, inability to communicate coherently, inability to dress/undress without assistance, inability to walk without assistance, slurred speech, loss of coordination, vomiting, or inability to perform other physical or cognitive tasks without assistance.

Coercion is the use of express or implied threats, intimidation, or physical force which places an individual in fear of immediate harm or physical injury or causes a person to engage in unwelcome sexual activity. Coercion also includes administering a drug, intoxicant, or similar substance with the intent to impair that person's ability to Consent prior to engaging in sexual activity.

Educational Prevention and Awareness Programs

The University provides education programs and outreach events throughout the academic year to promote awareness of sexual assault, domestic and relationship violence,

DONATE

These campaigns provide information regarding resources, teach sensitivity to complainant/survivor experience, and promote a healthy culture and mindset that prevents these crimes from occurring. Additionally, in compliance with Campus SaVE as well as State Law and BoR/ULS Policy, Nicholls provides specifically structured educational programs for all new students and employees annually. These include definitions of these crimes as well as consent; bystander intervention; risk reduction; and an emphasis on these crimes being strictly prohibited by the institution.

The University also adheres to its procedures and protocols that hold perpetrators accountable and its vigilant crime reporting data and statistics that provide transparency. These factors contribute, along with the education efforts, to the prevention of the crimes addressed in this policy.

Procedures

Being a complainant of any of the violations addressed in this document is traumatic and all complainants will respond differently. However, all complainants have the same options and rights afforded to them. Below is an explanation of various procedures associated with these options.

Initial Procedural Information for Complainants

- Any person who has been a complainant of a sex offense is encouraged to seek prompt medical attention regardless of whether or not the decision has been made to report the crime to the police.
- Medical attention will help ensure that any injuries and/or diseases are identified and treated
- Medical attention allows for evidence collection at the individual's request, which is extremely important should the individual decide at any point, immediately or later, to pursue criminal prosecution, civil action, or a protective order.
- In order to preserve evidence, complainants should avoid the following
 - Bathing
 - Douching
 - Urinating
 - Drinking any liquids
 - Smoking, eating, or brushing teeth if oral contact occurred
 - Changing clothes. However, if clothes are changed, place the clothes you were wearing at the time of the assault in a paper bag

Reporting Procedures

All complainants of sex offenses, domestic or relationship violence, sexual misconduct, and stalking have several options for initiating a complaint and/or taking legal action. These are listed below and the individual may choose to implement one of these options or any combination of these options, including all. Individuals representing any one of the on-campus options below will be able to provide complainants with information about and assistance contacting the other options. Additionally, complainants have options to file informal or formal complaints with campus entities. Informal complaints will involve finding solutions that address the complainant's concerns and allow the complainant to continue to matriculate or work without interference related to the incident. Formal complaints will trigger official investigations, processes such as adjudication, and potential hearings by a Discipline Committee or Anti-Discrimination Committee. Complainants may file both complaints and take legal action by filing reports with law enforcement, file a complaint only, halt the informal complaint process at any time and pursue a formal complaint, or bypass the complaint process and only take legal action by filing a criminal report with law enforcement. Informal complaints are not appropriate for all incidents included in this policy and there may be circumstances where the University is obligated to pursue formal protocols to maintain the safety of the institution. It should be noted that informal complaints/resolutions are not appropriate for all types of incidents.

It is also important that complainant understand the level of confidentiality to which each individual is obligated. Privileged professionals have legally protected parameters when acting in their clinical role, which means that if a complainant reports that they have been a complainant, that professional cannot and will not disclose the information to any individual or office without the complainant's consent except under circumstances require disclosure under the laws governing that profession (e.g. imminent danger to self

Once a report is made the University may have an obligation to investigate and/or take action. All reports received by the U.P. are shared with Title IX coordinator and vice versa.

Investigation Procedures and Protocols

Both formal and informal complaints may be sent to the Title IX Coordinator or Deputy Title IX Coordinator by Responsible Employees or others as requested by the complainant. Typically, the Title IX Coordinator will invite the potential complainant to meet to ensure that the complainant understands all options and protocols. The general responsibilities of the Title IX Coordinator include overseeing the institution's response to reports and complaints and identifying and addressing patterns or systematic problems revealed by such reports and complaints. Additionally, the Title IX coordinator will review requests for confidentiality in the context of the institution's responsibility to provide a safe and nondiscriminatory environment for all students as well as identify need for and implement interim measures where necessary. If the incident is not Title IX related, the potential complainant may be referred to the Title IX Coordinator or other appropriate official such as the Dean of Students to review all options and protocols. Nicholls State University policies and procedures will not be implemented in a manner that will infringe on any form of speech or conduct that is protected by the First Amendment.

Investigation

All sexual misconduct, interpersonal violence, stalking, and sexual harassment incidents and complaints that are initiated by a complainant or are initiated administratively due to concerns for general campus safety are processed through Conduct and Accountability (campus judicial process) or Human Resources. These procedures can be found in the Student Policy and Procedure Manual: Standards of Conduct and the Employee Policy and Procedure Manual.

If a complainant's request for confidentiality limits the institution's ability to investigate a particular matter. An institution may take steps to limit the effects of the alleged Sexual Misconduct and prevent its recurrence without initiating formal action against the alleged perpetrator or revealing the identity of the student complainant. Examples include providing increased monitoring, supervision, or security at locations or activities where misconduct occurred; providing training and education materials for students and ing and publicizing the institution's policies on Sexual Misconduct; and te surveys regarding Sexual Misconduct.

Procedures for Institutional Disciplinary Action

If the respondent is a Nicholls State student, complainants are encouraged to file a formal complaint with the Office of Conduct and Accountability. If the respondent is a Nicholls State employee, complainants are encouraged to file a formal complaint with Human Resources or the Title IX Coordinator. Individuals are not required to file a police report or pursue criminal charges in order to pursue a formal complaint with Conduct and Accountability or Human Resources. Mediation through informal resolution or other means is never appropriate in sexual misconduct or relationship violence cases, but may be pursued in sexual harassment cases.

The Student Policy and Procedure Manual: Standards of Conduct and the University Employee Policy and Procedure Manual are both designed to provide a prompt, fair, and impartial investigation and resolution. All hearings are conducted by members of the Nicholls State community who receive annual training on issues related to relationship violence, sexual assault, and stalking as well as how to conduct an investigation and hearing process that protects the safety of complainants and promotes accountability.

The primary adjudicator at Nicholls State when the respondent is a student is the Director of Conduct and Accountability, Dr. Tommy Ponson (985-448-4525). This individual also determines sanctions in cases that do not go through the Discipline Committee and recommends sanctions for cases that do. The primary adjudicator who also determines sanctions at Nicholls when the respondent is an employee is the Director of Human Resources, Mr. Steven Kenney (985-448-4041) or Compliance Officer in Human Resources, Ms. Patti Rasberry (985-448-4050). Should either the complainant or the respondent feel that any of the individuals involved in this process present a potential conflict of interest should provide a written statement to the primary adjudicator within 10 work days of the hearing. If the conflict of interest is with the adjudicator him/herself, the written request should be presented to the Title IX Coordinator or Dean of Students.

During any disciplinary proceedings the complainant and respondent are entitled to the same opportunity to have others present, including the opportunity to be accompanied by any related meetings or proceedings by any individual (i.e. confidential advisor, fan.

DONATE

community advocate, etc.) of their choice, excluding individuals who will assist. However, these individuals will not be allowed to directly participate in the process by addressing or being addressed by the primary adjudicator or the committee members, witnesses, or the other party.

Both the complainant and the respondent shall be notified of any scheduled hearing. Both parties shall have the opportunity to present witnesses and other evidence. Note that questions or evidence about the complainant's prior sexual conduct with anyone other than the respondent is prohibited. Additionally, Evidence of prior consensual dating or sexual relationship between the parties by itself does not imply consent or preclude a finding of sexual misconduct. During any hearing proceeding, complainant and respondent shall not be allowed to directly question, examine, or cross examine each other. A full list of complainants' rights and respondents' due process rights can be found in the Student Policy and Procedure Manual: Standards of Conduct and the University Policy and Procedure Manual.

Both the complainant and the respondent will simultaneously be informed in writing of the outcome of the disciplinary proceeding within 10 business days; the procedures for the respondent and the complainant to appeal the results; any change in the results that occurs prior to the time results become final; and when the results become final. The institution will not require either party to abide by a nondisclosure agreement, in writing or otherwise.

The standard of evidence used in institutions of higher education is different from criminal justice system. At Nicholls State University the standard of evidence shall be whether it is more likely than not (also known as preponderance-of-the-evidence) that the respondent committed the violation charged.

Sanctions for students found responsible for committing the violation charged include but are not limited to restricted access to campus activities and organizations, restrictions from residence halls, community service, rehabilitative education, suspension, and expulsion. The final level of sanctions imposed will be consistent with the severity of the violation and the respondent's past violations of the code of conduct. Similarly, sanctions for employees found responsible for violating University policy include but are not limited to letter reprimand, restricted access to campus events, suspension, and termination. Additionally, process may result in accommodations or situational remedies for the /or remedies for the broader campus community.

Both parties may choose to appeal the decision of the primary adjudicator or Committee. Detailed explanations of procedures related to appeals including grounds for appeal, standard of review, the entity who will decide appeals, and time parameters can be found in the Student Policy and Procedure Manual: Standards of Conduct and the Employee Manual.

The full detailed policy and proceedings contained in the Student Policy and Procedure Manual: Standards of Conduct can be found at <https://www.nicholls.edu/sja/student-conduct-handbook/> . The full detailed policy and proceedings contained in the Employee Manual can be found at <https://www.nicholls.edu/policy-procedure-manual/>

Prohibition of Retaliation

Retaliation against an individual who in good faith complains of sexual misconduct or provides information in an investigation about sexual misconduct is strictly prohibited and will be considered a violation of the Student Policy and Procedure Manual: Standards of Conduct or Employee Policy and Procedure. As such, consequences of retaliation will be implemented as per the respective policies. Any student or employee submitting a sexual misconduct complaint or assisting in the investigation of such a complaint will not be adversely affected in terms and conditions of employment and/or academic standing, nor discriminated against, terminated, or expelled because of the complaint.

Amnesty Policy

Any student who reports in good faith sexual misconduct of any kind shall be provided amnesty for nonviolent Code of Student Conduct violations committed by him/herself in association with the reported sexual misconduct. An example of this policy is underage drinking by the complainant or witness that might be revealed in the course of the report or investigation.

In addition to the information provided in this document, students or employees who report that they have been a complainant of any of the aforementioned crimes will be provided with a written explanation of all of their rights and options as well as resources. All of the rights and responsibilities described below are implemented regardless of whether the complainant chooses to file criminal charges with law enforcement or pursue a formal complaint through the Student Code of Conduct or Employee Policy.

Protective Measures

There are options at the complainant's request for accommodations, providing such accommodations are reasonably available, to be made in campus living, academic environment, and on-campus employment environment to protect the complainant from encountering the respondent and to help ensure the complainant's safety. Stay-away orders may also be issued to the respondent by University Police or Conduct and Accountability. This assistance is available regardless of whether the complainant reports the crime to law enforcement, files informal complaint, or files formal complaint.

The University prohibits any kind of retaliation against anybody involved in a sexual assault, domestic or relationship violence, or stalking case. This non-retaliation policy is explained in this document and provided during the initial contact with all involved in the case.

The University is obligated to protect the entire campus community. Therefore, in some cases protective measures include issuing public safety alerts based on information provided by the complainant and/or any witnesses. The complainant's name and other personally identifiable information will not be included in public safety alerts.

Support Services

The following services are available immediately to any student involved in sexual misconduct: on- and off-campus resources, including but not limited to local advocacy, counseling, health and mental health services, as applicable. These support services will be offered regardless of whether the complainant chooses to formally report the incident. Contact information for this purpose is below.

The University will preserve the confidentiality of a complainant to the extent allowed by law. The degree to which confidentiality can be protected depends on certain factors.

The Person Receiving the Report

Privileged professionals who have legally protected roles include University Counseling staff when acting in their clinical role; University Health Services staff when acting in their clinical role; and Clergy. This means that if an individual reports that they have been a complainant to one of these privileged professionals, that professional cannot and will not disclose the information to any other individual or office without the complainant's consent except under circumstances that require disclosure under the laws governing each profession (e.g. imminent threat of danger to self or others). Designated trained Confidential Advisors are also available to university students. Other faculty/staff, including some student staff, are required to report such violations to the University Police and/or Title IX Coordinator. However, the complainant's name or identifying information is not required in these mandated reports. A third category of individuals includes those who must report all information related to the report to the Title IX Coordinator and/or designated campus official responsible for overseeing sexual misconduct complaints. Please see list of each of these categories of individuals in Reporting Procedures section.

Balance of Legal Obligations

The University fully understands the impact of confidentiality of complainants and exercises genuine sensitivity to the privacy concerns of complainants. However, this must be balanced with legal obligations which include

- The responsibility to protect the entire University community from predators: In some cases Public Safety Alerts must be issued associated with the crime. These Alerts will not contain any of the complainant's identifying information.
- The responsibility to hold perpetrators accountable and insure that appropriate disciplinary processes are implemented: Based on severity of the violation and the respondent's history of violations, investigative and/or disciplinary action may be taken by the University even if the complainant does not want to participate in the process. Every effort will be made to not include the complainant's identifying information and the complainants will be kept informed of the actions and the extent to which his/her identifying information was or was not able to be contained.
