

At MSU, you might want to think twice about sending an e-mail. Under the university's Network Acceptable Use Policy, you might be accused of "spamming"—especially if you criticize the administration. That's what happened to Kara Spencer, who sent an e-mail to faculty members about the administration's plan to change the school calendar and that's why MSU is one of only five schools in the country on FIRE's Red Alert list.

* Information from Jupiter Communications

KNOW YOUR RIGHTS
FIRE
www.thefire.org/msu